

Appendix D – Criminal Conspiracy Alive and Well in DC

I think you will concur that the equestrian class in Washington DC has transmogrified itself into a criminal malformation. The rejection of the Christian underpinnings in our Constitution since the Second War for Independence (Civil War) has spawned a new phylum of political parasites. Even while they violate our Bill of Rights by planning tyrannical crimes against the people behind closed doors, they still maintain the notion that they are decent, law-abiding citizens.

“If he thought of himself as evil, he would not do the things he does. The criminal has no need to rationalize or justify himself before or during his activities, for he is not a criminal, but a decent person. The action contemplated is desirable and acceptable to him, and others are fools not to do it; so what is there to justify?” (Samenow & Yochelson)

Those of us who have Biblical norms and standards would repent (or at least blush) to say and do the things that these swollen sycophants are flaunting before us daily on the electronic stage. But while we sit in disbelief, gasping at their audacious perversions of the law, they continue to maintain an image of themselves as good persons, giving them a license to commit yet more crimes against us. I cringe when I say this, but I think they are going to get away with it. They have gotten away with their crimes so many times - the odds are on their side that they will get away with it again.

I contend that the majority in Congress are not merely sick and sinful, but evil - morally reprehensible, wicked, and offensive ... individuals who bring sorrow, distress, and calamity, and are under the control of a cosmic evil force. (Webster definition) I fear that this pattern of criminality – “a personality disorder rooted in lying, manipulation, deceit, egocentricity, callousness and other potentially destructive traits” (Babiak & Hare) - is not going to bend to the will of Tea Partiers in the next election cycle. Members on both sides of the aisle are conspiring together and the difference between the two socialist candidates they present to us will only be a matter of degree.

The current administration’s change management plan is nothing less than a bloodless transition to socialism, the first step in Satan’s collective, international plan. It has a bait-and-switch agenda: social welfare is the bait, Congress is the bagman, and the switch is free enterprise replaced by Marxist State theft. Bye, bye, Miss American Pie; hello pernicious poverty for the populace.

“He who proclaims the godliness of the State and the infallibility of its priests, the bureaucrats, is considered as an impartial student of the social sciences. All those raising objections are branded as biased and narrow-minded” (Von Mises).

It’s good to keep in mind the 6th chapter of Ephesians when discussing politics in the USA today. It’s acceptable to name names like the apostle Paul did, when he heard about resistance to Bible doctrine from false propagators and slanderers (1 Tim. 1:20). Not only did Paul name them, he turned them over to Satan for discipline. This was an authority that apostles had when the Church was being formed, but nobody has it today. That’s too bad ... because I have a few candidates in mind.

God's system is built on free enterprise. It is built on investment capital and encompasses the profit motive. There are so many examples of how this system works, and how Satan destroys it by some form of socialism, that Gary North has written economic commentaries on virtually every book of the Bible. The failure of the free enterprise system today is based on two reasons: (1) God is supposed to be the center of commerce, yet He has been banished from this world by those who have made gods of business; (2) Satan has gradually replaced free enterprise with socialism, cronyism, and the welfare state. When the Progressive goal is to collapse the current system and replace it with communism, everything is turned upside-down.

"The wicked bless the covetous, whom the Lord abhors."

Business leadership, so-called, has completely embraced covetousness. Getting yours is the name of the game. This is Satan's definition of winning, which the Lord hates. It starts out as a self-centered form of degeneracy, but with the desire for more and more power, money and toys it aligns itself over time with tenets of socialism and cronyism. Covetousness knows no limits. You can never have too much power, money, or toys. And if you don't keep "feeding the monster," you may eventually lose what you have. The perpetual sin machine feeds itself.

"All men like to shine. Go into business circles, and see how men struggle to get into the front rank. Everyone wants to outshine his neighbor and to stand at the head of his profession ... And yet there are very few who really shine in the world" (Moody).

Satan is the author of rebellion and insurrection. He uses covetous human beings to further his own plan, which is to collapse the system. Whenever you hear this phrase, it always means to collapse free enterprise (God's system) and replace it with something more conducive to his control (Satan's system). That's the way he thinks and operates. His goal is to enslave billions of human wills, not give them more liberty and freedom. Furthermore, Satan does not think small. He knows he has a short time remaining, so he is taking his religious, political and economic system of socialism globally.

"Today's worldwide crisis centered in the US, UK and Europe did not have to happen. It was not caused by incompetence and greed. It was designed to destroy the economic and financial system to a point where the inhabitants of these countries would beg for world government. It began, as we know it on August 15, 1971, when the US went off the gold standard. Since then the dollar has lost 98% of its value versus gold, silver and in some cases other currencies. As this became the monetary future, events were put in place to move almost all industry and some services out of the US, UK and Europe, better known as free trade, globalization, offshoring and outsourcing. In addition unsustainable debt was created to make sure the system collapsed. The Anglo American empire is in an ongoing state of collapse, which they deliberately caused themselves in order to subdue and enslave humanity" (Chapman).

Do you think I'm being facetious? Am I using hyperbole? By the time you finish this book, you will realize that I'm not. But that doesn't mean we can't have a sense of humor while we're being robbed by the barons. What else can you do when you realize we are not going to recover? Our politicians bet the house this time, using our money as collateral, and they lost. We're just waiting for the bill collector to arrive, while the media lies to us on every front 24-hours a day. But at least you are one of the fortunate ones to still have a good job, or you wouldn't have the money to buy this book

“You can't get a job anymore, because all the jobs have been shipped off to Guangdong Province or someplace south of the border. The best you can hope for is some part-time gig jerking double-tall-mochas or steering folks towards the red-dot special on Aisle 9. So, how can you sustain a middle class on a measly $9.50 per hour? It can't be done” (Whitney).

See, it's still possible to have a sense of humor, although I had to cite this anecdote from a freelance writer to get you to crack a smile. This is the same type of gallows humor that proliferated during the Great Depression and in the Soviet Union before it collapsed. A large segment of the country is relatively untouched for the moment, but that will change when the next balloon bursts. If you don't see it, maybe you should get out more often. There are a lot of people barely hanging on out there, contrary to the cooked statistics promulgated by the Obama administration.

Have you looked around lately? Have you noticed the women at the grocery store who keep their heads down at the checkout stand while they load the boxes of mac n' cheese onto the conveyor-belt hoping like Hell that one of their credit cards will be accepted? Have you noticed that there are more kids at school showing up like ragamuffins and piling into the cafeteria for a free lunch? Have you been to a state park lately and seen the people who sleep in their cars at night and then spend $.50 to shower in the public restrooms? Have you taken a look under the freeway overpasses where small encampments are turning into tent cities? I'm telling you, our goose is cooked” (Whitney).

The socialist answer when their edifice comes tumbling down, is to (a) print more counterfeit money, (b) spend it like drunken sailors, (c) increase revenue by taxing the same money they just counterfeited, and (d) blame it on capitalism when the economy crashes. If the origin of this criminal activity isn't satanic, what is?

“Historically, nations tax, borrow and spend until there is nothing left to tax and borrow. Because of the risk of riot, insurrection or removal from office, politicians refuse to directly cut spending. Instead, they print money. Unfortunately, the citizenry does not realize printing money and the ensuing inflation amount to a cut in benefits. Then politicians lay the blame for inflation on greedy capitalists who raise prices” (Will).

The problem with this scenario is that it is true and that it is being orchestrated on purpose. The magnitude of the problem has been glossed over so we won't panic and start exiting the movie theatre. Now that you've had a few chuckles, here's a few statistics to ponder from Chris Kitz of Before It's News, the People Powered News site:

- The United States government is responsible for more than a third of all the government debt in the entire world.
- During Barack Obama's first two years in office, the U.S. government added more to the U.S. national debt than the first 100 U.S. Congresses combined.
- The U.S. government currently has to borrow approximately 41 cents of every single dollar that it spends.
- Mandatory federal spending is going to surpass total federal revenue for the first time ever in this fiscal year. That was not supposed to happen until 50 years from now.

- If Bill Gates gave every penny of his fortune to the U.S. government, it would only cover the U.S. budget deficit for 15 days.
